- 2D art

Product Description

In the world of the Forgotten Realms: Demihuman Deities Game, the demihumans are not still trying to figure out what happened to their godlike race, they are busy worshipping their runaway minions. Despite an enormous forget the demihumans were once a smart, civilized and advanced race of animal like bestial manish tribes they had forgotten their gods and followed the god of Law Chaos and Wolfen. Their former kings ruled these worshipping goblins one by one being murdered or driven out and the remaining tribes driven and a whole race of beast-men exterminated.

Completely redesign all the CR 0,1,2,3,4,5 and 6 demihumans from this book.

What's new:

I am the Dungeon Master for D&D Classics 2nd Edition. I had always wondered if there were any strong demihuman deities for characters to worship. Now I can find some of my own.

D&D Classics - D&D Classics: Cults of the Forgotten Realms (1E) Most of these cults are a little too simple for my taste, but I have extracted them from the source. Often these are fairly small groups of cultists centred on a particular cleric or wizard, or their patron deity, and they usually exist in small provinces or villages. The Cults of the Forgotten Realms are the names of the provinces of the Avernus minor continent introduced in 1E, and these provinces encompass some of the nations explored in the Forgotten Realms Saga.

50 Follower Worshipers I wanted to come up with a little list of followers for clerics, druids and paladins. Each follower will have a single devotion to a single holy symbol - a deity, an idea or whatever, and a chance to roll charisma to enhance that devotion. I also wanted each follower to have a random feature, and so I have included special traits for the Ahlucu, the Priigu and the Yutunu.

Follower Worship (1E) A player may be religious (or just dedicated) to up to 50 different religious denominations, believing that any of these denominations is the right one for them.

Complete Ally (1E) This code adds a need to the levels of allies a player currently has, to less of an extent than the Ally code.

Intermediate Ally (1E) This code adds a need for a new level of loyalty. In place of the complete-ally and plus-ally rolls, there is an intermediate-ally need. When dealing with cultures, each culture has an intermediate-ally requirement, (culture actually does have needs).

Ultra-Complete Ally (1E) This code adds a need for a player to be the absolute leader of every generic group involved in the situation that the code represents.

Follower Worship (1E) A player may be religious (or just dedicated) to up to 50 different religious denominations, believing that any of these denominations is the right one for them.
