An Ambitious RPG in the Old School The Asmodian Princesses and the Witch in the Forest Witchcraft, exploration, questing and turn-based combat are major features of the RPG genre. The best of these usually fall back on existing conventions, such as clunky text interfaces, text messages rather than the voices of the characters, and RPG-ish terminology that no one understands. But The Asmodian Princesses and the Witch in the Forest, a real-time implementation of the Senet board game of the same name, is exceptional in its depth of gameplay. In this game, with its low-power graphical engine, it is possible to walk around using an arrow key pad, explore with the mouse, read minutes-long conversations without losing your focus, and play turn-based battle with a mouse. The engine doesn't force you to have a keyboard, it provides game-pads and joysticks for those who want them. And when you are playing turn-based combat, which sometimes happens, each combat can be simulated at a turn-based resolution to achieve maximum completeness. Most recent reviews from Steam But, the good news is that this isn't a bare bones, text-based game. Even if you are not interested in Senet, the overall interface and game engine are still very good, and can be used for any game, with some extension. The game engine itself is actually a fork of a well-known game engine called eZGame. If you are a fan of Lady Death games, most Senet games and the Baldur's Gate series, you are probably familiar with eZGame. The long list of games supported by eZGame is impressive, and is currently the only Senet engine that can make the transition to a major browser game. An interesting feature of the engine is that it is, in a sense, very simple. eZGame does not try to model every single move of the game, but builds a detailed game model by simulating each action of the game. The engine can also be lacked of not having certain features, such as armor or breathing. Asmodian Princess Building a game engine is only a small part of the programming work

Keala (American aunty) - 11:57 AM Having recently returned from our first family reunion, I'm writing this while sipping a cup of coffee at the sofa, after the kids went to bed. The weekend was a lot of fun, at least from our standards. We took the afternoon trip to San Diego to visit my parents for the first time (my cousins and family live there) and had a picnic dinner at the Del Mar Dunes, about 30 mins drive away from my parents house. While the weather was slightly rainy, the weather was just fine for us. The kids had a lot of fun playing and splashing in the waves. The following day, we hired a car and went to the local beaches to relax and spend some time together. We had a lot of fun at the Carlsbad State Beach, catching cool waves, feeding the crabs, enjoying some good times. We decided to stay for dinner at a nearby restaurant, Croaker's Cove, and we had delicious dishes there. Afterwards, we all went for some ice cream at a local ice cream shop.

Our last day was spent with fun activities around our family property near Orrville, Ohio. During the last part of November, when the weather is wet and grey, it's pretty easy to feel down about the season, but while giving each other gifts around the house, we always joke that "it's gonna be better than last year." The bitter cold winter of last year was absolutely miserable. All we got for Christmas and New Years was a warm, grey summer, followed by a cold, snowy winter. That's right, it was over 50° to 10°, for a good five months. Now that's cold. So while November always feels like the beginning of winter, I'm ready for the winter season to be over and a chance for a sunny and beautiful spring with warm and hot weather. I can't wait to wake up each day, look out the window, see the beautiful blue sky full of clouds and and the sun, with warm temperatures. While the winter wind can sometimes make it feel chills during the winter, fall is a time for us to have fun outside, like enjoy the fresh air, feel the cold, stay outside for long hours and play in the snow. It's the perfect balance of time when we need to stay

Risk of Rain 2 is the next chapter in the "Risk of Rain" franchise, and it's all about characters living in a world full of monsters. In the first chapter the player is making use of the new Overflow mechanic. Overflow is a "first person" mechanic which allows the player to push back a monster by sending it airborne. By aiming carefully and playing the music well, the player can dramatically reduce the monster's damage. In this chapter, the game is a first-person shooter in which the player turns the tables on the monsters to be the one that makes them flee. This chapter and the upcoming community content will consist of great missions and a large variety of new monsters and characters that will become friends to the player. The characters that will be there are of different races and classes. All characters have their own individual skills and abilities. The main goal of the player character is to defeat the monsters and be the last one standing. While the original game was an extremely successful experience, much of the early reception was less than desirable. The game is a difficult game requiring a strong focus and an adequate amount of time to master. The sequel to the cult favorite puzzle platformer Risk of Rain does not simply re-pack what made the original successful. It expands on that while still maintaining a strong identity and accessibility. About This Game This is the original soundtrack for Risk of Rain 2's expansion - Survivors of the Void Chris Christodoulou expands on his work for Risk of Rain 2 while also reintroducing several themes from the original Risk of Rain. Heavy on guitars and synths, punctuated by pounding drums, washed in lush reverbs, the album also introduces new timbres to the Risk of Rain sonic-verse: Soaring violins, lyrical woodwinds, deranged saxophones, even a baglama makes an appearance! The album contains 9 tracks delivered in high-quality MP3 (320kbps CBR) & FLAC and is approx. 40min long.
