
Oblivion (Drum Kit) WAV

to celebrate the release of the first trailer for joseph kosinski's oblivion, we have an exclusive oblivion - the trap video featuring an artist's demo of the score. the trailer was directed by the phenomenal visual effects supervisor kosinski and contains some of the best visual effects seen in any trailer this year. the concept video is a testament to the masterful work done by the vx team at industrial light & magic and the visual effects company double negative. what's more, some of the other music in the trailer, including the haunting score from m83, kraftwerk, and erasure, is also featured on the accompanying trailer addict site. the trailer for joseph kosinski's oblivion dropped today and the reaction has been enormous. it's the kind of trailer that goes viral, and has been getting tens of thousands of views per hour. it's a real shame for the world's most innovative and successful visual effects company, industrial light & magic, to have a marketing campaign so terrible that they have to resort to such cheap tactics to get attention. to be fair, i'm sure they're hoping that the trailer will get enough attention to generate interest in the film and that's the plan behind the oblivion trailer, but they need to make a better effort if they want to create a more impactful trailer. the included sounds are inspired by genres like post-metal, sludge, prog-metal and alt-rock and are intended to have the punch to slice through the densest walls of guitars. based around a mapex orion kit with mapex brass and brady jarrah wood snares, and nops custom created snares, this drum kit is open and able to handle a wide range of genres. the oblivion drum kit bundle comes with 3 drum kits, all unprocessed, so nops team of engineers are ready and willing to mix and process these drum kits as well as their other samples.

we are currently in post-production and are mixing the score. we use the library to create the soundtrack. a soundtrack is a different approach to doing a score. it's a different approach to doing a movie because the soundtrack is the score. this is a library that will be used for the soundtrack of oblivion. we are using this library for oblivion. the library is a part of the movie and is integrated into the movie. we are now mixing the score. it's a big library, and we don't have any particular set of drums in mind. we are mixing the drums as we speak. oblivion was recorded at the same studio as iron maiden's 1981 album, piece of mind, so that's where i was comfortable. although i did do some tracks at a studio in london, and also at a studio in bradford. nirvana front man kurt cobain was a huge fan of the band, and would frequently jam with the band during recording sessions. lyrically, "blew" is about cobain's relationship with his wife courtney love. the song was written after the couple's separation, but before their divorce. when cobain heard the version of the song recorded for the oblivion album, he told iommi that he was very proud of it. cobain sang backing vocals on "blew" and "hate to say i told you so". on the band's diary of a dead girl album, the band would also include "blew" in their setlist. the song was featured on the band's last official release, in utero, released in 1996. it is rumored that cobain may have actually written the song, as his wife claimed it was written by kurt, although it was never credited to him. 5ec8ef588b
